

THE WHITE HOUSE BRIDE.

country and never more beautifully produced than upon the court train of this latest White House bride. China, Japan, Korea and the Philippines have all contributed to Miss Alice's trousseau, but the gorgeous beauty of the Mikado's gift suggested itself as most fitting for a court train upon a wedding gown. No trimming mars its perfection. It is simply lined with heavy white satin and sweeps away from the slender form of the wearer as the sheath of a lily from its budding loveliness.

Miss Roosevelt's bridal bouquet will be of wonderful white orchids and will cost $100 of Mr. Longworth's money.

"If there could be real flowers made to order, Nick would have them," said a congressman with whom he chums, "but as white orchids are about the rarest and most delicate of earth's blossoms, Mr. Longworth decided that his bride should carry them."

The bouquet will not be the usual shower affair so long favored by the brides on this side of the Atlantic, but it will be fashioned after that carried by the ladies of the English court. The exquisite fragile blossoms will be arranged in cascade effect, the stem of which will be carried close to the body in the right arm, while the bouquet falls over the arm in a graceful arrangement almost down to the rim of the skirt in front. It is to be tied with tulle and white chiffon satin ribbon with long bow ends. During the ceremony the lovely bouquet will be held by the bride's sister, Miss Ethel Roosevelt.

The color scheme of the decorations will be white and green. Huge tree ferns and graceful palms of the Australian and South American varieties will be used as a background for the flowers. As the bride is fond of lilies, and as her court train is in a lily design, St. Joseph lilies will be largely used in the decorations, with white lilacs, potted white azaleas and white tulips.

White orchids and lilies of the valley will be used upon the bridal table, which will be set in the private dining room of the White House.

While many of the hundreds of presents which are coming in with every train to Miss Roosevelt are known, the president has decided not to give out a list to the public, despite the fact that to the feminine portion of the land, at least, there is nothing so interesting as an enumeration of the bride's presents—and such a bride, and such presents.

These are some of the gifts sent to the White House bride:

From the President of France, a piece of Gobelin valued at $25,000 to $50,000.

From Emperor William, a handsome jeweled bracelet and a set of Saxony dishes.

From the Empress of China, embroidered brocades and carved dowry chest.

From the Austrian Ambassador, brooch of diamonds and sapphires.

From Baron and Baroness von Sternberg (German Ambassador), a specially designed set of Dresden dessert plates.

Vice-President Fairbanks, set of Bel-lique bouillon cups in gold and silver.

Secretary and Mrs. Shaw, Sevres chocolate set.

Senator Foraker, mirror in heavy embossed silver frame, and set of oyster cocktail cups in stands of silver filigree lattice work.

Senator Knox, silver jewel box.

From Ambassador and Mrs. Reid, diamond dog collar.

Mr. Longworth, a strand of diamonds closely set in gold mountings. A large silver loving cup from the Ohio delegation (congressional).

A necklace and brooch of aqua-marine stone, set about by four tiny diamond hearts with diamond hearts in chain, the Taft party.

A set of Tiffany glass, the New York delegation.

Mrs. Longworth, mother of groom-elect, a diamond necklace.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills, a dog collar of diamonds and pearls.

Secretary and Mrs. Root, a chain of turquoises.

A handsome traveling bag with toilet articles and bottles of cut glass, with tops of solid gold, from Congressman Sherley.

Diamond collar, from Secretary and Mrs. Taft.

Cuba, a necklace of pearl.

Silver fancy fruit compote, from Longworth servants.

Silver tea set, from Minister Senor and Senora Quesada.

A magnificent service of silver from the Rough Rider association.

Miss Carrow, sister of Mrs. Roosevelt, jewelry.

A Krag-Jorgensen rifle of solid gold, working model size, officers of the United States army.

Among the other gifts ordered for Miss Roosevelt at various jewelry stores are three diamond tiaras, valued from $3,000, to $20,000 apiece.

Collar of pearls and diamonds.

Five brooches of diamonds and other precious stones.

Twelve chests of silver.

Five solid-silver loving cups.

Four large urns of silver and sixteen solid silver tea sets.

Twelve dozen spoons of various kinds, and dozens of rings, brooches and bracelets.

Twelve elegant oriental rugs have also been received, and enough candlesticks to light a church, as a friend who has seen the presents has expressed it.

Senator and Mrs. Spooner have given a very handsome point lace fan with ivory sticks handsomely carved.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a meeting of Flagstaff Lodge No. 13, A. O. U. W., held on the 15th day of February, 1906, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, The supreme ruler of the universe to whose will we humbly bow, has, in his infinite wisdom, seen fit to call to his eternal home our beloved Brother, A. S. Roberts, therefore be it further

Resolved, That in his death this Lodge has sustained an irreparable loss, and that he was a true and devoted member of this Order, and be it further

Resolved, That we tender to the bereaved family of our Brother our sincere sympathy in their affliction, and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon our minutes and that our charter be draped in mourning for 30 days, and a copy sent to the official paper of this jurisdiction and a copy sent to the family of our late Brother.
